I wrote this memoir to clear the air in my own conscience after experiencing all the things being a Commodore at a yacht club brought me. The book explains in detail how I managed situations that arose when dealing with people and personalities. The detail the book provides gives you a porthole into how my thought processes worked as I negotiated and resolved various issues. This book shares what can happen when you do get involved...how diving in allows you to experience issues first hand and how to take on responsibility and get things done - even when dealing with challenging people and complicated situations.
